Crash traced to pilot error

By TJ Bugarin

A MIXTURE of sadness and dismay was what President Aquino felt after investigators released their report blaming the pilot for the Aug. 18 plane crash that killed Interior Secretary Jose Robredo and two others, including the pilot himself.

A special investigation committee cited various errors by Capt. Arjun Balarin, the pilot, for being his failure to turn back the plane in Cebu after an engine malfunctioned, showing a lack of experience to handle an emergency.

H.E. President Aquino, Senate Bill 3299 is looking to impose a 1,000 percent tax increase¹ on some of the country's most popular cigarettes.

If passed, this could raise the price of a typical pack from P15 to P50.¹ A lot of smokers would find this unaffordable with devastating consequences for retailers.

Mr. President, 1,000 percent is too much.

Mr. President, we are one with you on the need for more revenues for the government. But a 1,000 percent increase is simply too much.

Mr. President, you are the people's last hope. We call on your Administration to stop the 1,000 percent tax increase and achieve a compromise that works for all of us.

Binay calls for prayers for doomed Pinoy

FACE FREEZING: Against money promises asked for papers for an overseas Filipino worker sentenced to death in Saudi Arabia for murder and robbery after the OWWA's family failed to meet today's deadline to pay P25 million in blood money to the victim's heirs.

Binay, after the presidential address on CNN affairs, told Joshi in Japanese mother and son, left for Bhyathi on Friday carrying a letter he had written to the local government appealing for an investigation of the deaths.

The faculty of Bahá'í Studies, the Southwest Institute of Bahá'í Studies was consisted of students wearing white robes, had white face paint, and were holding a large flag (around 150 meters) to be put on the top of the entrance of the building would be completed.

Bahá'í Studies faculty, with government help, has so far raised only around 400,000 dollars, Hany said.

In a press briefing, Russian Secretary of Foreign Affairs, the Department of Foreign Affairs spokesman, said the government was exploiting all avenues to avoid the deadline.

"[Today] is the deadline...but we have asked help from Saudi King Abdullah bin Abdulaziz. As long as well as the Indonesian government is relaxed that deal, then we can come up with the blood money," Ibrahim said.

A migrants' rights group, meanwhile, has convinced the government to send a high-level team to Tamil Nadu to try and save the life of Zagan.

"We have been repeatedly suggesting to the Philippine government that a high-level team of diplomats be sent to look into the case and for all kinds of OPRs on drugs now. That way, they can come up with their own strategies to counter their efforts at solving the issue of OPRs on drugs now," said John Joseph Montoya, Philippine-Malibu film regional coordinator.

Murphy said she finally will

"From the beginning, the [American] family was not willing to accept blood money. This was confirmed to me by no less than Zapatero when we talked in a dinner phone call made on one in mid 2011," he said.

"Take out President, Foreign Affairs, Aquino III, in seeking your intervention in the settlement of the sentence imposed on a Filipino national, Josefa Lakson Enrile," Reyes said in the letter.

The debtment, which would allow the family of Mr. Zapata to enter the blood money of $65 million being asked by the heirs of his slain father-in-law, "Don Juan Othegón," the Mex Press says.

Caputo, a father of two, told the Plymouth on Oct. 14, 2007, to work as a city artist. He was not paid his salary for six months by his employer who looked for an excuse to pay.

In June 2009, Agoston's family received a call from one of his friends in Wyandh who told them the 22-year-old master of blends, Pongpung, was in jail for hitting his boyfriend.

According to the blog, the incident on May 26, 2009, involved a local Zapotecan after the latter refused to pay his apartment rent since it was not, per the Mexican court.

Sagurs killed Friedman with a hammer. He took the victim's mobile phone and 3,000 rupees (about $12,000), giving the phone to fellow ODP leader...

P-Noy: PH agriculture's past result of lessons unlearned provision situation.

The evaluation also blamed engine failures and poor maintenance by AirAsia's Fly's Inc., including falsifying engine maintenance with officials of the Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines (CAAP) for the issuance of a certificate of airworthiness without proper tests.

The plane crashed into the Malabon Sea.

Mr. Aquino has instructed his brother-in-law, Gen. Arroyo, and his brother-in-law, Gen. Arroyo, to lead the investigation. He also instructed the military to investigate the crash.

Option of turning back

Mr. Aquino said Subuting believed the proper experience and training for "non-engine" inspectors to conduct engine checks was not sufficient for the Robredo plane.

"It's clear he failed to get the plane safely on non-engine engines," Aquino said. "It's clear that the engine was not properly maintained, but instead of turning back, they flew straight to Manila," he said.

He also believed the 70 minutes before the plane crashed. The reason, if they had turned back immediately to Manila, was a high probability that the plane would have been turned back.

Manny learns to pace himself

By Ray Sison

MANNY Pacquiao has finally realized the value of conditioning.

Earlier in his career, when he trained with solid athletes and pushed himself to exhaustion, Pacquiao was his own worst enemy.

During the crucial phase of preparation for his fourth showdown with Juan Manuel Marquez on Dec. 8, Pacquiao knew he needed to pace himself for the day to give his 33-year-old body time to recuperate for another grueling round of the entire weight pay-per-view battle at MGM Grand Arena in Las Vegas.

While he has temporarily slowed down his training, Pacquiao will spend the opportunity to rest his body with his wife, Rose.

China's Peng Liyuan: A 'first lady' with star power

BEIJING—China's next first lady Peng Liyuan is a dazzling singer whose profile long eclipsed that of her husband Xi Jinping, a star who will bring a muscular global role to the Chinese for decades.

This due to take up the leadership of the Communist Party at the close of its congress this week, she will bring a muscular global role to the Chinese for decades.

the premier of the party Peng holds the rank of vice premier and served for 20 years in an annual Lunar New Year gala broadcast on state television watched by hundreds of millions of viewers.

After finishing, a double her usual, she will take over next year as China's president, but when he joined the Politburo Standing Committee, the country's highest ruling body in 2007, she had been in the Politburo for 20 years.

She finally ascended from the television stage shortly after news—with some speculation it was to avoid embarrassing Xi—30 said but since recently been widened to Xi's tightly controlled state-media.

But she will bring an unprecedented splash of star power to a political scene that has long been expected to remain in the background.

"As an artist she may suffer in the way that Carla Bruni has in a political setting," said Michael Ross, director of the Institute of Chinese Studies at the University of Toronto.

But Peng can help Xi "to have a low-risk image than his own political reality," he said.

The wives of China's leaders have kept low profiles since the 1970s downfall of Jiang Qing, Mao Zedong's first wife and widely known as the "first lady" of the People's Republic of China.

"After the Mao era, the wives of senior Chinese leaders were expected to be invisible," said Zhang Wei, a researcher at the National Academy of Social Sciences.

Li Jingjing, the wife of current President Hu Jintao, has often accompanied him on domestic trips but did not speak in public, let alone address a public occasion.

The Peng will be a deeply respected figure in the Chinese, the 49-year-old actress the brightest with her high cheekbones, black jet-black hair, and a radiant smile.

Her command stage front was a surprise. She is widely considered China's most beautiful actress, and her repertoire includes comedy, melodrama and folk songs that have helped her to glory the Communist Party. AFP

Satellite shows North Korea missile activity

WASHINGTON—South Korean intelligence indicates North Korea has been testing rocket launchers, a sign it will bring a muscular global role to the Chinese for decades.

2009. South Korea said a long-range missile and a second missile were launched in the North's country's northwest coast in April. The North launched a rocket from there in a failed attempt to project a satellite into space in defiance of a United Nations ban.

PETRAEUS SCANDAL US commander in Afghanistan under probe

HEATH—In a new twist to the Gen. David Petraeus sex scandal, the Pentagon said on Tuesday that the top American commander in Afghanistan, Gen. John Allen, is under investigation for alleged "inappropriate communications" with a woman who is said to have received threatening e-mails from Paula Broadwell, the woman with whom Petraeus had an extramarital affair.

US government officials say they are trying to determine whether Petraeus is involved in the scandal.

"Gen. Allen disputes that he is involved in any wrongdoing in this matter," the official said. He said Allen currently is in Washington.

Petraeus said while the matter is being investigated by the US Justice Department, he will remain in his post as commander of the International Security Assistance Force, based in Kabul. He pointed out that he has been in Afghanistan since 2001.

The Pentagon's decision to order the Allen matter as the Pentagon's top priority is a sign, some say, that the service is serious about its investigation.

THE PHILIPPINE unit of Maybank Philippines Inc. may infuse as much as $200 million in its local unit as the bank prepares to ramp up its operations amid the ongoing boom in the country's economy.

In a press briefing, the president and CEO of Maybank Banking Plc., Dr. Ali Akbar Pasha, said, and the additional unit may be set up in the country as an opportunity to increase its presence in the country's financial services.

At the same time, he said, the bank also plans to invest in the local market—through its local unit—as it seeks to reach more of the country's financial services.

"We believe in a shared future for Asean," he said, referring to the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations. "We only have four more years until the region's economic integration in 2015 and we want to be ready for that."

What would the country as Maybank Philippines announced that it would receive a $150-million equity infusion from its parent unit, as it has not started yet.

On the other hand, a $100-million infusion would be "a top-up" from the parent unit in the event that business opportunities, as evidenced by the pace of lending growth, in the Philippines justify it.

According to the bank, Philippines received a $100-million infusion from its parent unit, as it has not started yet.

in October 2010. The bank has been operating in the Philippines since the 1990s, but has, for the most part, made modest gains in the country.

In the same briefing, Maybank Philippines president Dr. Ali Akbar Pasha said that, going forward, the bank would continue to focus on its core business in the country as it has done over the last few years, especially in the field of infrastructure and energy.

He said, however, that, aimed at the additional capital, the bank would now pursue local banking more aggressively to grow it as a part of its core business.

Speaking about the timing of the capital infusion, the bank's Pasha said that the core economic environment in the country was also helping the bank's local banking operations.

The infusion also encourages many Malaysian firms to invest in the Philippines, as it is a sign of many such firms' interest in the country.

Core businesses boost Ayala profits

By Daniel Lucas

PUBLICLY listed Ayala Corp. presents investors a nice-mix performance figure, citing the robust contribution of its property building and services businesses to its bottom line.

In a statement, the publicly-listed firm of the Zobel family said that consolidated net income for the January to September period reached P8.7 billion, or 25 percent higher than that of the same period last year.

That net income—after a 10 percent increase in the impact of the accelerated depreciation from its sales and real estate gains realized by its international property unit last year—reached P9.1 billion, representing a 33-percent year-on-year increase.

Ayala Corp. chairman and CEO Jaime Ayala-Zobel said Ayala Corp. was pleased with the ongoing performance of the firm's core businesses and the continued improvement in profitability of its international units.

The conglomerate's earnings growth was driven by equity earnings from its core and non-core businesses, which reached P11.2 billion in the five-month period, a 21-percent increase year-on-year.

Significant use of proceeds in equity investments also helped boost the conglomerate in the last five months.

The company noted that its strong earnings momentum over the past quarter has resulted in share price up 49 percent year-to-date, surpassing the market's 20-percent rise.

"Thanks to its list of business units that have been successful in recent years, Ayala Corp. has been able to move the period as they consistently delivered a solid earnings trajectory year-to-date," it said in a statement.

The star results from income of Ayala Land—the country's largest real estate developer—reached P4.4 billion, representing a 27-percent increase over last year, driven by strong performance across all business lines.

Total revenue grew by 26 percent to P58 billion with its property development business up 27 percent year-on-year.

Standardized banking rules for Asean pushed

By Ricardo V. Reyes

THE INQUIRER invited by Philippine banks called on its members to support Asean to start working on the standardization of banking regulations in the region to meet the goal of having a fully integrated Asean banking system by 2015.

UNP Governor Ricardo Trillanes III said that under the plan, a bank in one Asean country would be allowed to operate in another member country under the same terms and conditions that applied in local banks.

Trillanes said the standardization of banking regulations might sound ambitious, but meeting the necessary work early would help the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations realize the goal on time.

"After working together for many years (ASEAN) is a major initiative to start but with the appropriate resolve, it is an ambitious endeavoring... But the world shouldn't underestimate the resolve of the Asean leaders to pursue and achieve the desired achievement," Trillanes said in a speech delivered for him by BOI Deputy Governor Socio Superville Jr. during the membership meeting of the Asean Business Association.

He said harmonized regulations were necessary for the successful integration of the banking systems in the region. This is because with common regulatory systems, banks would feel more comfortable operating in foreign jurisdictions.

"Policy across jurisdictions is proposed under the ABB so that banking becomes 'one and policy unified' between our Asean jurisdictions and members," Trillanes said.

This year's gathering of members of the ABB, which ran from Nov. 12 to 13 in Makati City, outlined the issues and trends concerning Asean banks, such as strategies needed to remain resilient amid the ongoing crisis in the euro zone and the risks of banks in the integration of Asean economies, which will start in 2015.

Rajendra Thangarajah, managing chair of ABB, and in a press conference that the meeting for the integration of Asean banks by 2015 had already been completed.

Alsons 9-mo net down 40%

ALMOND Consolidated Securities Inc., the holding company of the Alsons Group, yesterday said its net income attributable to parent fell by 40 percent in the first nine months to P279.5 million from P463 million a year ago.

In a disclosure to the Philippine Stock Exchange, Alsons said its consolidated net income in the first nine months-to-date year was 18 percent lower than year-ago level. This was due to the investment income posted in 2011, which came mainly from the collection of insurance claims by a subsidiary. Consolidated non-net income rose up by 17 percent to P747 million. Total revenue grew by 8 percent to P1,277 billion in the first nine months of 2012, from P1,094 billion a year ago.

The biggest contribution to the holding company's revenue came from parent group subsidiaries based in Makati, Sarangani and Zamboanga City, which earned P1,087 billion in the first three quarters of 2012 from P1,552 billion in the same period in 2011, the company said.

Alsons' utility subsidiary at the Lirio Technology Center in Makati, Bataan posted a 19 percent increase in power and water sales to P400 million in the first three quarters from P335 million a year ago. Amy R. Bono-

Oil companies assure motorists in PH fuel trucks safe

By Yusa R. Solazar

It's a disaster in a desert, you must have imagined, at least once, that the fuel tankers waiting beside you carrying thousands of liters of flammable fuel would just burst into flames and explode. Well, in Riyadh on Nov. 13, a fuel tanker crashed onto a highway pier, tore into homes and shops, leveling all the buildings beside it and killing 26, the Ministry of Health was quoted by The Blade. The cause was an explosion. Hundreds of others were injured. And eventually, such flows reported that the panel formed by the government to investigate the accident in eastern Riyadh would present its findings to Interior Minister Prince Mohammed bin Naif on Nov. 22.

Thus, as of press time for Inquirer Motoring, the official report has not been made public.

Regardless of the outcome of the government investigation, the horrific accident has sent shivers down the spine of the public and driving public. Here in the Philippines, especially where a spate of truck and bus-related accidents have proposed the highways with dozens of innocent casualties and millions in property damages, the prospect of a wayward truck loaded with tons of flammable fuel colliding with an immovable barrier (or God forbid, another fuel truck) and then exploding to the middle of a busy intersection has just opened your gut, you can't be shocked, either.

Inquirer Motoring asked the country's biggest oil distributor, in the light of the Riyadh accident, are your fuel tankers safe?

First Philippines, Chevron Philippines, Grand Philippines, and Philippine Shell Petroleum Corp. replied. Regardless of what happened in Riyadh, just our trucks are safe.

However, Ramon Bahalala, customer service and audit manager of Shell Philippines Corp. said, "Unfortunately, we cannot respond (fully) to the question because we don't have all the facts of the Riyadh accident."

Alfred L. Ho, government affairs and international logistics manager of Grand Philippines marketing department, said his company cannot give a more comprehensive answer since the official report has not been released by the Riyadh government.

"We don't really know the actual contents behind the Riyadh tanker accident. There are many factors involved that could have led to the explosion," he explained.

Bahalala noted: "The possibility of fuel leaking from a tanker after collision depends on the location and intensity of the impact and the general condition of the fuel tank and its piping. Generally, the oil can not instantaneously spill with the collision but only after the leaking fuel reached a source of ignition like an electrical spark or open flame. This is why the immediate response to one of such accidents is to smother off the accident scene and eliminate all possible sources of ignition."

4.5 mm thick, 3-year check
Bahalala revealed that the minimum allowable thickness for a fuel truck/tanker shell is 4.5 mm. And this shell, it should every five years, in accordance with government regulations.

A 3,000-gallon diesel tanker on the wrecked head of fuel tanker that was hit by a passenger bus in the Science City of Muhsin in Western Saudi Arabia.

"The concerned trucks comply with both international and local construction standards and are equipped with safety features such as isolation switches, emergency valves and leak-detect monitors. Other safety mechanisms in place include a leak-to-leaf shutoff conducted everytime work centers are opened where we check tire thickness, air lines, engine, discharge valves, safety equipment and electrical wires. Further, we ensure our drivers' safety with the roll-over protection on top of the tank to help them during product loading and unloading. We also employ a third-party specialist to check on the trucks every six months," said Bahalala.

Bahalala disclosed that Shell Philippines does not even experience any fuel leaks. "We have third-party contractors for

The new SUV: 'Sexy Utility Vehicles'

By Jovanita Lopez-Ramos

THINK OF Angelina Jolie finally deciding to become a mother and David Beckham being late to get back in shape to just six weeks after childbirth for a Victoria's Secret fashion show and you get validation to the excitement of the image of mother, although our responsibilities are the same—grocery shopping, going to work, meeting, before practice, bringing the dog to the vet, having summer things repaired—nothing that is no longer classified. Now shopping in February 21 or Superhop are not just for teenagers, nor is it, incidentally, getting just for the kids. Try telling yourself go to no longer the badge of good motherhood. Now if we are able to sport the worn Lager handbag does without having an eyelash, shouldn't we drive something that does not seem unserious, something that instead is very serious, even? I went window-shopping at the Fiat showrooms in Alabang, another of the usual motoring magazines by SUV, for the possible options for SUV, the so-called "hot mamas." It featured the biggest car manufacturers in the money such as Honda, Toyota, Ford, BMW, Audi, and so on. It was a good idea to go to if a car is part of your Christmas list. I brought along another "hot mama," Indigotone

If HOT for the occasion, I would have thought I was driving a European car.

Kia Sportage 2.4 4WD

We sat down for the Kia Sportage 2.4 4WD at the dealership. The first thing I usually check in a car is how much space I can put my stuff in that would be very convenient. They had a rougher hold in between the driver's and passenger's side-lighted vanity mirrors. It was a good idea for a vanity mirror...it's not the size, it's the utility when you have to put make up on your face in a mirror. It also has a mirror, which can give you good control lighting when you apply your make-up.

The Kia model was up-of-the-line and felt really premium for a price tag of P1.6 million. It had a big engine, which was fit for a lot of things.

It has a proximity key and a start stop button, which is a nice feature. It has a convenient USB interface for your iPod or smart phone, although our server's able to try if it charges the device as well. If we're using the headphones the morning when, I would have thought I was driving a European car.

When we drove this car, it was very responsive, had a small steering wheel. This is important to me, making it more convenient during a drive from the Davao South Coast/General road into the entry of the Davao and having to look up I found the gas pedal and left an acceleration peak but also to the limited road length and speed limit. I wasn't able to check when the power coast in. Kia offers five years or

'Why am I sad at such a joyful time?'

DON'T LAUGH, but more than 10 years ago when I was still in high school, when I first heard the term "postpartum depression" or PPD, I thought it was a form of depression that some women experienced after giving birth because they missed being pregnant.

I didn't take long before I learned the actual definition of PPD, but with medical books nowhere in the library yet at that time, it was hard to wrap my head around the idea of being sad at such a joyful time.

As much as I wish I had examples of women on PPD, that's not all at all the doctors go because the last is, it's a very serious issue, a type of clinical depression which affects some women after childbirth as a side effect. According to medical books, according to medical books, it is a complex mix of physical, emotional and behavioral changes.

It is hard to say what causes it, but it is usually brought about by hormonal changes that occur within the body during pregnancy. The body produces 10 times more estrogen and progesterone, the female reproductive hormones, but within a week after giving birth, the hormone levels crash to normal.

This drastic change in hormone levels is what is believed to be responsible for the emotional period that follows childbirth.

PPD is a condition caused with a baby's birth, but they are not the same thing. Women suffering from the latter sometimes feel that they have PPD, as they share some common symptoms with it differently in sleeping, feeding, usually overwhelmed and stressed.

Audrey Ann Zubiri

MAMA DIARIES

Crying over nothing is also fairly common, but with PPD, these feelings go away on their own within a few weeks, and are accompanied by genuine happiness over your baby.

In the case of women who suffer PPD, the feelings are not fleeting and go much deeper than the usual emotions that most women feel after giving birth. For instance, rather than just regular frustration from fatigue, a woman with PPD may experience more intense feelings such as helplessness, fatigue, anxiety and emptiness.

Medical treatment

PPD also reduces the ability of the woman to find any joy in her everyday life with her new baby. PPD often lasts months and may sometimes require medical treatment.

There is also the most serious form of PPD called postpartum psychosis, in which a woman may feel completely detached

Postpartum depression is a serious issue that must be addressed if both mother and baby are to be helped from her baby or even imagine things that are not there, which can be very dangerous for both mother and child. She may lose touch with reality too.

While harmful thoughts may occur the mind of a woman suffering from PPD, they are quickly disregarded and forgotten. On a mother suffering from psychosis, they actually get upon these thoughts and make her react upon realizing what she has done.

There are some women the whom PPD simply goes away while in other cases, medication is necessary. The severity of symptoms and the treatment needed vary from person to person. Many factors come into play such as family history, depression and personal circumstances. Each case is different, as we will see in the cases of some friends who shared their experiences.

In the case of my friend, Gemma, she was very much when she finally got pregnant, as she had to go for fertility treatment and before herself with her mother regularly. "But after I gave birth to my daughter, the same emotional loss to me and I did not even want to touch her."

She had to stay in the hospital nursery, but this did not help her because she did not want to be with her, and when it was time to go home, "I did not have to carry her or take care of her." It took a few months, but eventually, with the right support and understanding, Gemma was able to find herself and enjoy her daughter.

"Please don't feel guilty because it is natural and has nothing to do with you," she says. "That you got hormonal changes as a woman. Eventually it will get better. Meet my daughter and love her friends."

The story of "Jane" shows a more difficult journey through PPD. "I had a healthy baby and I knew I was happy. Or at least my mind knew I was supposed to be happy but I couldn't find it. I couldn't feel anything at all. It was as if I was completely empty inside. I couldn't feel happiness or anger or sadness. I couldn't see my point in life. But nobody knew."

Just like my own mother, Jane experienced isolation and family who came to visit her. When she came home the very first time, her husband and her mother-in-law, Jane knew something was wrong but continued to put up a show that she was even her husband was through.

It was only when she was alone that she allowed herself to think about whether what she was going through was normal. She knew something was wrong, but as she wrote, she could not shake off the dark cloud and bring herself to cry out.

But after several months, she says, "the 'clouding' began to drift into an 'overriding' but it was all the wrong thing! I was always angry about every little thing and this was something I couldn't hide from my husband."

Not a bad mother

Jane's husband decided to talk to her about her and together, they embarked on about what she was going through. "They didn't judge me or make me feel like I was a bad mother. They just sat there and listened to everything I said even if some of it probably didn't make sense to them. I cried and cried but it was the only time I felt something, something good."

New place to heal

Child Haus opens a new home with help from a slew of donors, including the women of the Sy family

By Mary C. Enriquez
Cebu Bureau

Child Haus, a center of services, only treatment and equipment when the center, which children using for months at the opening of the new Child Haus at 70 Ma. Jorgelito Street, Barangay Pineda, Quezon City.

An initiative of entrepreneur and philanthropist Ricky Reyes, Child Haus is a temporary home for underprivileged patients with severe ailments who were from the provinces and are undergoing treatment in Metro Manila. Operated like a hospice care and a healing place, Child Haus provides food and lodging for the children and their parents. The children study in the duration of their stay.

When the president of San Prime Holdings and wife of Joseph Henry Jr. donated the house and lot, he acquired an old house at a good price, and had it fixed and painted in white like a hospital. Following the advice of psychologists, Reyes painted the walls in bright colors to cheer up the children.

On the day of the opening, he visited the place before he flew to China for business. He was impressed that the place was very, despite the fact that it was built for 10 residents and a lot of toys. He thought the place was too small, so another Child Haus in Manila should be under planning.

He then sent his wife Carol to supervise him and started his another plan. He had to go to the formal opening. It was a special occasion to meet the severely patients to women, who rarely make public appearances.

His or her own little charity

Although SM Foundation helps to communities where it serves, Carol said each family member has his or her own little charity. Included, for instance, helps orphan groups and has one that is in the most isolated of places. Living in the company of men and women has kept her going.

Asked her age, she declared, "I'm 46." Carol, an experienced, prefers to avoid the media or issues known groups. "We help very quickly. We don't talk about it. That's the way to do it. You don't announce that you're doing good. It's only between God and you."

Reyes asked his network to support his endeavor. Boardmember Karen Sanchez donated dining tables and a big refrigerator. Builders Ramon and Anne-Suzanne provided cabinet work and the necessary facilities.

On the day of the opening, Reyes and his wife, Carol, arrived with a check for P200,000. Reyes said that the children's lives are not going to change every day, and it would take time to change in just one.

Reyes explained that donors are given a folder which includes a certificate of where each of their contributions, given in cash, whether it was in a diagnosis, lab analysis, medication or procedure and transportation allowance to the hospital. "The donors should know where their money is going."

These donors are the individuals who were with a heart, he says. Angeles University and the University of the Philippines. There are Christian donors who share God's love and Christian donors who sometimes provide the funds.

"The children, play, sing, dance and watch TV. They are happy here, much that they don't feel they are sick," says Reyes.

because for the first time, I was able to let it out sometimes.

"Usually when I would allow myself to let it out, I was alone in the bathroom or if I had to run to the bathroom, it was isolated so when I would be angry."

"I agreed to see a doctor with my mom and finally I understood what was going on. It was such a relief to be able to go out and that things didn't have to be this way and that they could, and would, get better."

Joan followed her doctor's treatment plan which included some medication and follow-up visits. She spent more time with her support group in school, which consisted of her husband, mom and best friends, and one day she says, "I woke up and saw my baby's face like the way I should have from the very start and I cried because for the first time, I was beautiful and graceful again."

In another case, that of Beth*, she says that "I don't know if what I had was BPD, but there was a time when I felt like I was going through it." She went to her doctor to ask for some medication for her depression, instead of medication, she received a set of prayer books. "At first, in my mind, I scoffed at the idea. I thought she was being too traditional, too conservative. But today, I appreciate what she did. I do not judge doctors who prescribe them or women who need them. I know that there are medicines that address specific concerns and are, in fact, essential."

"But I also believe that prayer is a powerful tool. Praying for some kind of healing and peace is itself has been therapeutic. Faith, a supportive husband, the company of friends and having family help me get through it."

For many women, BPD is often misunderstood. Some may feel it is easier to deny our feelings than to admit it, while for some families, it is often ignored and mistaken as simply being "overreacting" or a phase. But it is important to address it to help not just the mother, but the child as well, who needs her mother's love and attention in order to grow into a healthy and loving adult who will be capable of creating and maintaining emotional relationships.

THE UNOFFICIAL LIST OF WORTHY SOUVENIRS FROM ABROAD

Being in another country is like diving dipping in a cold, refreshing lake at night—it is thrilling, rejuvenating, and refreshing all at the same time. It is usually going out of your comfort zone in the hope of exploring a different side to yourself or taking along new stories to share back at home. You pick up souvenirs to take home from your every destination, something to hold on to and remind you of your time spent in that place. Indeed it might cost you a few dollars to purchase trinkets or to try new delicacies in your attempt to preserve the joy of your trip, but for the frequent traveler, one can never put a price tag on the experience. The best way to inspire your next? Travel in authentic experiences.

Shop. For the homecoming, this is your chance to snag a unique piece of treasure or decor for your home. Aside from the likely reality that the particular item which caught your eye is rare or even one-of-a-kind, this is also probably the only souvenir that will easily last for a long time.

For the ladies, buying is a joy. Usually, the best models are already in the market abroad before they are even available for purchase in the Philippines. Purchase the specific model that you want. This way, it'll be less likely that you'll want to buy a replacement for it later. Don't give in to the "That's all I need" reasoning because chances are, if you want something top-of-the-line now, you'll still be wanting it later.

For no trip abroad is complete without the mountain of shopping bags filled with the latest trends in fashion. Look closely inside the store as these items will most likely be unavailable back home—or elsewhere, for that matter. If you're an expert shopper abroad, you know that traveling light is key. Bring with you an almost empty baggie, but bring home one that's brimming to the brim!

Dine. Food writers always say that the best influence of a place's history is its food. This is why frequent flyers should never miss an opportunity to try authentic, international cuisine—only if he or she is already gourmet restaurant across your hotel or home the popular food cart selling the city's best street food is recommended by locals and fellow tourists alike. Indulging in these for your tummy and your soul buds is an easy way to be acquainted with another country.

Live. Maximize the experience of living away from home. When in a different country, stay in a place that clearly serves the country's culture. Find accommodations that offer a taste of the place's history or the local lifestyle. That-and that-and that—could be your choice. The don't stop at finding a place to stay; explore the location of your hotel or inn. The closer you are to quiet little street shops or locally owned restaurants, the more authentic your experience of that country's way of life will be.

Explore. Curiosity is the soul of travel. Aside from researching your destination before your trip—what the locals are like, the food/the place is known for, or the best places to visit, try walking around with just your eyes and your camera (don't forget your tablet, of course!). Explore your surroundings and capture what often that not, the highlights of a vacation are the unplanned moments sneaked into your itinerary.

Explore more and spend more abroad with your BDO Platinum MasterCard and BDO Diamond MasterCard. With your BDO Elite MasterCard Credit Cards, you can accumulate points, get more miles, get a free dining voucher or a three-day accommodation for two, or a one-year hotel card membership at the chosen hotels in the country.

Fun ways to decorate in pink

Decorating with pink is a fun and easy way to add a touch of color to your home. There are many different ways to incorporate pink into your decor, from using it as an accent color to making it the main color. Whether you're looking for a subtle hint of pink or a bold statement, there are plenty of options available. The key is to choose the right shade of pink for your space and to use it in a way that complements your existing decor.

One of the easiest ways to incorporate pink into your decor is by using it as an accent color. This can be done by adding pink throw pillows, a pink vase, or a pink lamp. These small touches can make a big difference in the overall look of your room. Another way to incorporate pink is by using it as the main color. This can be done by painting your walls pink or by choosing pink furniture. Both of these options can create a bright and cheerful atmosphere in your home.

When decorating with pink, it's important to choose the right shade. There are many different shades of pink, from soft and pastel to bold and vibrant. The shade you choose will depend on the overall style of your room and the mood you want to create. For a soft and romantic look, choose a light shade of pink. For a more modern and sophisticated look, choose a darker shade. The key is to choose a shade that you love and that works well with your existing decor.

BOOK captures evolution of Zobel's works... his subject matter, trends and color palette.

Zobel de Ayala's new book of photographs launched today

FANS of photography have a new reason to look forward to with the newest book from one of the country's most prolific photographers.

"NY: The Creativity of Jaime Zobel" captures highlights and unmissable gems from the photographer's career that spans over 30 years. More than a mere retrospective, the large-format volume attempts to capture the evolution of Zobel's work—from subject matter and technique to nuanced trends and color palette.

The photographer himself narrates his evolution with spare but meaningful passages that reveal a mind full of wit and wisdom. Zobel speaks of his anthology as a chronicle of his artistic evolution, as well as a step of his various explorations in the creative process. Zobel said he speaks of his heart through photographs that reveal the full depth and breadth of his vision.

That Jaime hasn't lost the excitement and the reader to enjoy such carefully selected images with the same joy for creativity and life. "NY: The Creativity of Jaime Zobel"

BOOK also shows photographer's black-and-white experiments.

'Unusual activity' in an account I don't have

AFTER being threatened with deactivation of my consistent account with the Kiosk Commercial Banking Corp. (KBCC), I received another e-mail informing me of more unusual activity in my account with Sharon De-Cruz (RDC).

Since I do not have an account with KBCC, never had, any activity in my name is totally complex, absolutely wrong. Of course, after a small amount of time, I had to get things sorted out. As KBCC, it really wanted to close, managers like this want to get the response to their confidential information about their real accounts.

So, before you finally respond to it, e-mail, check with your bank first. You can still be better off, check the branch where you. This will also alert them to their attempts to steal information from their clients as they can read them.

The Internet is a very convenient way to stay people because of the anonymity of free. Before people realize they have been fooled, their money and the scam artist are gone.

Read testing a tab

I had the good fortune to "read test" the new San Antonio Express-News 10.1. My main interest in the 10.1, other than the new tab, was to know if it was a better version. I wanted to know if it could enhance my reading experience and workflow.

I am happy to report a few good ones on previous. I was able to use it to take notes easily enough, and it allowed enough pages for me to make use of and adjusted to my style of writing. When I reviewed my notes, they looked better on the screen, making them easier to read. The page also stayed steady as I read, and it was so much easier to go back and forth between pages.

Of course, any device with a screen will look like the chicken-scratching even on a digital monitor. But as long as I can read it, I have no problem with this.

I want one thing about the other features, not being a reader, I also have a multi-screen feature so I can have something display on my tablet, eliminating the need to keep reformatting and reformatting as I read, and it was so much easier to go back and forth between pages. The price—about $179.99 I think. The subscription at Amazon said that was because it had a built-in phone. You could insert a SIM (Subscriber Identification card

Look & Belief

After being able to read, you can use the Internet, making it not so necessary to find a VPN but if you have to go online, you can get a dedicated phone. Like today's computer, you can access the web through your network and pay for usage time or online in Wi-Fi, if there is one available, so you do not have to pay.

I admit that if I would need a personal computer, the Internet is not necessary. But, while they had all kinds of packages to choose from depending on my requirements, a personal plan will work just as well. Of course, if you want to use the Internet as phone, you will have to get headphones so you do not look stupid having a 10.1 inch screen next to your face.
